Members serving on this panel are: Dr. Lyman Partridge, chairman, and Miss Hazel Brain of the C.W.C.E. faculty; Mr. Douglas Hendel, supervising principal, Lake Washington Junior-Senior High school, Kirkland; Miss Leila Lavin, assistant superintendent in charge of elementary education, Spokane public schools; and Mrs. Carol Schroeder, teacher, Washington school, Sunnyside.

The conference is featuring Dr. Dora V. Smith, professor of education, University of Minnesota, and director of the curriculum study, National Council of Teachers in English.

Ranniger Named Editor Of Freshman Handbook

Dan Ranniger, sophomore, has been named editor of the student handbook for freshmen to be given to new students at the beginning of the fall term. He was appointed by the SGA council.

The handbook, published for the first time last fall, contains information for freshmen and new students when they start at Central. It contains the background for school activities such as music, drama, publications and sports plus helpful hints.

Ranniger, who is active in college drama, was also news editor of the Crier last year.

WELL-KNOWN TRIO PRESENTS CONCERT TUESDAY EVENING

The Alma Trio, composed of three internationally known musicians, will be heard in the college auditorium next Tuesday evening, August 3, at 8 p.m.

Adolph Baller, pianist, made his first public appearance at the age of eight with the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra. He played in all major cities of Europe and did a command performance before British royalty.

Roman Totenberg, violinist, was born in Poland and introduced to this continent by Artur Rubinstein. He has been soloist with famous orchestras including the New York Philharmonic, the Cleveland and National Symphonies.

Gabor Rejto, violincelloist, was graduated with honors from the Budapest Royal Academy in his native Hungary. He has appeared in concerts throughout Europe and has been soloist with the Budapest Symphony, the Vienna Symphony, the Rome Philharmonic and the Warsaw Philharmonic.

Friends of many years standing, they began ensemble playing one summer in California when they were all guests of Yehudi Menuhin on his Alma estate (from which the Trio takes its name) in the Santa Cruz Mountains.

Each would spend many hours a day practicing his individual programs for the following season. In the evening, for recreation, they would gather in Mr. Menuhin's music room to play chamber music.

The enthusiastic reports of all who heard them brought more and more people to their impromptu concerts. The demand for invitations grew to such an extent that they were persuaded to give their first public recital in the nearby community of Los Gatos.

This first concert was so successful that others followed. Writing of the series, Alexander Fried, critic of the SAN FRANCISCO EXAMINER, declared that they were the most important musical events of the season.

The next summer the three friends again returned to the Menuhin estate, and once again gave concerts, playing in Stanford, Carmel and throughout the San Francisco Bay area.

During their third season (1946) the Trio gave over twenty concerts in the cities of northern California, including an important series at the University of California at Berkeley.

30 STUDENTS SIGN FOR TRIP TO CHELAN

Approximately 30 persons have signed up to take the two-day excursion trip to Lake Chelan on the weekend of August 7 and 8, Arnold H. Faust, faculty member in charge of the trip, said this week.

Transportation will be by special Greyhound bus and it is scheduled to leave the campus Saturday, August 7, at 6 a.m. That will allow sufficient time for the group to arrive in Chelan to catch the morning boat to Stehekin Lodge at the northern tip of the lake.

This will be the last recreational excursion at the College this summer. Since it has been necessary to make reservations in advance and pay a small deposit, further applications to make the trip have been closed.

College Play Presented Tonight and Tomorrow Night in Auditorium

Changing the original presentation nights, "I Remember Mama," all-college play, will have its first showing tonight in the college auditorium. A second performance will be given tomorrow night. Curtain time is 8:15.

A play in two acts written by John Van Druten, "I Remember Mama" had a long successful run on Broadway and has been presented as a road production. It was recently made into a movie starring Irene Dunne with a supporting cast including Oscar Homolka, Rudy Vallee and Edgar Bergen.

HOME COMING SET FOR OCTOBER 30; SGA MAKES PLANS

Annual homecoming for alumni and former students of Central Washington College has been set for the weekend of October 30, it was announced last week by the President's office.

Tentative plans for homecoming were made by the newly elected student council prior to the end of spring quarter which promises to make this year's event one of the largest in college history.

The council voted to do away with the traditional freshman bonfire in the fall celebration. The danger involved in the situation which developed last year made the change necessary. Instead of the sophomores trying to ignite the freshman bonfire before homecoming, a tug-of-war between the two classes has been substituted. No bonfire is being planned.

Approximately 40 men will participate on each side of the tug-of-war with a fire hose streaming water through the middle line. The 40 losing men will be dragged through the stream of water.

As an aftermath, the losing class president will push the winning class president through the streets of Ellensburg on a wheel barrow.

Chairmen Appointed

Seniors and juniors will be assigned to police the tug-of-war to prevent unfair play, such as one side having too many men. All other homecoming traditions will be followed.

Chairmen for various homecoming committees were made by the student council. They are tentative and subject to acceptance by the students selected. Appointments are as follows:

General co-chairman: Jim Brooks and Phyllis Dunlap; signs: Don Tracy, Donna Sears and Don Fenton; stunt night—Bob Slingland, Winnie Williams, George Ice; parade—Dorothy Uusitalo, Roy "Doc" Meek, and Barbara Nees; dance—Delores Chapman and Don Miller; Banquet—Marie Nelson, Olga Belzer and Grace Cook.

Each group may select a head chairman for respective sub-committee chairman, according to the student council.

Miss Matson to Accept Job at Reed College

Miss Sylvia Matson, assistant director of dormitories, has resigned her position at C.W.C.E. to accept the job as director of commons and dormitories at Reed College in Portland.

Miss Matson will take over her new position on August 15. She has been at C.W.C.E. since September of 1947.

Don't miss "I Remember Mama" tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15 in the College auditorium.

RADIATORS KEEP UP WITH 'OLD SOL' ON HEATING PLANT TEST

It was 96 degrees a week ago last Wednesday by official tabulation of the weatherman. That wasn't exactly unusual. But when the radiators in the buildings began to crackle and pop with incoming steam, there was some reason to wonder.

A quick check revealed that at last the boiler in the new heating plant was in use. The engineers were testing the heat in each building. And of course it had to be one of the hottest days of the summer.

Students who were here during the winter months may remember how scarce a little steam was in the radiators during those days of near zero weather. The reason was that the old boilers couldn't get up enough steam to get it evenly distributed.

Talk went on about changing the boilers — first Thanksgiving, then Christmas, then perhaps during spring vacation. But the days came and went and still the old boilers blazed, pushing forth their puny stream of steam.

But no one cares about steam heat in the summer time. That is, no one cares about it unless they get in an abundance on a day when the mercury rises to 96.

ARTISTS TO GIVE CONCERT

THE BLUE CARD

By JIM CARMODY

It was my first day in Central Washington College. An intellectual looking blonde was passing blue cards among us. On the blue card there were three spaces, each one labeled "signature." I signed my name three times and the blonde snatched the blue card away from me. "You go to Dr. Zunie," she said advancing towards me. I dodged her and ran out of the room.

I found Dr. Zunie's name printed in red ink on a door. At least, at that time, I thought it was red ink. When I opened the door, I saw a big fat man stripped to the waist sitting cross-legged on top of the desk. Involuntarily I bumped my head three times on the floor. Recovering my composure I said, "I'm James Carmody."

The doctor's words came out slow and heavy. "I wear army drawers."

It wasn't until much later that I understood the social significance of this.

The slow and heavy words were coming out again. "What kind do you wear?"

"Striped ones mostly, I guess." I was master of myself sufficiently by this time so that I didn't confess that I really wore extra-long undershirts held together with a safety pin.

The doctor was holding his hand up, the palm towards me. "Then why are you here?" he intoned.

"The blonde sent me," I stammered.

"It would be better if you had sent her," the deep voice said slowly, "I'm a normal young man."

"It's about the blue card, sir."

"The blue card? Well, where is it?"

"She took it away from me, sir," I said lighting the candle that was on the table in front of him and dropping a coin in a little box between his legs.

"Took it away from you, boy? Took it away, you say? Your whole intellectual future is on that card." He brought his hand resoundingly against his thick thigh. "Get it back. And be quick about it."

I ran out of the room. The intellectual blonde was under her desk discussing some weighty problem with a young student who was about my age. Overcoming my desire to peek under the desk I quickly rifled through the pile of blue cards. I found mine, and patting that part of the blonde which was sticking out the rear of the desk I said, carefully separating the words, "Thanks loads." She did not cance in political documents. There its best writing is to be found; in the spaces between the lines and even sometimes between words and letters. One of the College's prize students puts most of his significances in the hole in the "O".

Finally the doctor breathed out a great sigh of relief. "Boy," he said, "come here."

I sidled over, giving his shoes a neat swipe with the sleeve of my jacket.

"Thank you, boy," he said. He pointed to the pamphlet laid out on his desk, my blue card beside it. "See," he said.

I looked at the writing in the pamphlet, which was almost identical with my own, and then I realized what the pamphlet was. "Why that's nothing but a handwriting analyzer."

"Wait a minute, boy. Don't jump to hasty conclusions. This one is no ordinary, run-of-the-mill handwriting analyzer. This one was prepared by the Dean of this College. Why he's even got it figured out that Hitler missed his calling. Really he would have been better off as a locomotive engineer. His handwriting shows it."

I knew he had me beaten, and I nodded my head in agreement.

The doctor pointed to the pamphlet. "Read what it says after your handwriting."

I read, "Those with this type of handwriting are invariably selfish, mean-spirited, and given to biting things. In politics they do their best work as lobbyists. As honest demagogues they are inevitable failures. Not one of them has ever become President. There is nothing that the College can teach this student."

"The characteristic flourish at the end of each word, so typical of this group, is highly indicative and saturated with significance."

"For more information on this type of person see page 49 of More Inside Stuff by the same author."

The doctor was again sitting crosslegged on top of his desk. On his face there was a look of great pain. "I'm sorry, boy. That's just the way it is. There's nothing that I can do. Necessarily I shall have you expelled from Central Washington College."

Examining me with a sympathetic eye, he went on, "Do not weep, boy. Next semester perhaps you will be able to buy a college of your own." He shook his head sadly. "I had such high hopes when I saw that you had spelled your name the same all three times."

Ruling Clarified On Vet Earnings

Due to numerous inquiries and misunderstandings over what a veteran attending college under the G.I. Bill and drawing subsistence may earn in addition to his subsistence, the following information has been released by the VA.

"The new law provides that earned income plus subsistence shall not exceed $210 a month for a veteran without dependents, $270 for a veteran with one dependent and $290 for a veteran with more than one dependent. The previous limits were $175 for a veteran without dependents and $200 for a veteran with one or more dependents.

"Another provision of the new bill may give some veterans additional increases. Only wages for the standard work week, exclusive of overtime pay, now are considered earned income in computing subsistence. Previously, veterans reported pay for all regularly scheduled overtime."

LIBRARY NOTES

Here are two interesting books for your summer reading. Pearl Buck has given us another interesting story of China. This time she has called her book PEONY. It seems that long ago Jewish traders made their way from Palestine to China. Some remained to make their home there, to intermarry and to be absorbed within the Chinese race. This novel tells about the family of a leading Jewish merchant, who is the son of a Jewish father and Chinese mother. His wife is loyal to orthodox faith and tries desperately to hold her son to it. The story also centers around PEONY, the young Chinese bonmaid who has grown up in the family. Peony develops into a lovely girl and falls in love with David, the only son. However, tradition forbids her marriage. You will be interested in how she deals with her love and also controls her destiny. The crux of the story is David's decision that assimilation is better for the Jews than their orthodox isolation. Although the story tells of China many years ago, the characters and situation seem as real and pertinent as if they were happening today.

The second book will make delightful reading. It is called MY UNCLE JAN by Joseph Auslander and his wife, Audrey Wurdeman. Both are well known poets and they have put their skill and charm into this novel. It is the amusing, and at times, hilarious story of Uncle Jan, who came from Czechoslovakia to settle down in New Bohemia, Wisconsin. Thru the eyes of a ten year old boy, we live through the series of remarkable predicaments. Through it all one breathes the marvelous aroma of Bohemian cooking and chuckles with Uncle Jan, whose contagious laughter rings out again and again.

"You were right, George, I should have started from this end."

Four Foreign Students to Attend
Central Beginning Fall Quarter

Korea, Holland and Guam Will Be Represented
In Student Body

Four foreign students will attend college on the CWCE campus this fall, according to Ernest L. Muzzall, director of instruction.

Mrs. Chung Oak Kim will enter college from Seoul, Korea. Nell Zan Burjeyk from Holland expects to attend Central for fall quarter. Two other women whose names are not yet known will start work for their B.A. in education from Guam.

Mrs. Kim besides doing basic work for her degree in education will also serve as an assistant house mother. At the present time she is serving as an assistant professor of Korean language and literature and assistant dean of women at Ewha, Women's University in Korea.

She is coming to the United States for two years. Arrangements for her schooling in the U. S. were made by the Institute of International Education in New York. The local Altrusa club is sponsoring Mrs. Kim and will provide registration and incidental fees for her enrollment.

Miss Burjeyk will take work in home economics and music. She has had two years previous college work at the Hague. She has also done governess work with British children. Miss Burjeyk will enter college this fall with her cousin, Alice Dekker from Harrah, Washington.

The two students from Guam will attend Central under a special four-year scholarship provided with the help of the department of education Naval Government of Guam. Word of these two students attending C.W.C.E. was received from Mrs. Mildred Moe Reeder, former student here and wife of a naval Summer vacation largely accounted for a decrease of 120,000 in the number of World War II veterans training under the GI Bill and Public Law 16 on June 1.

Authority of VA to provide automobiles or other conveyances for veterans who in the service lost, or lost use of, one or both legs at or above the ankle, has been extended to June 30, 1949.

The number of living veterans on VA disability compensation and pension rolls has decreased steadily over the past 13 months. The total dropped from a peak of 2,328,000 on May 1, 1947, to 2,289,000 on June 1, 1948.

Improved techniques in the care of mentally-ill veterans are enabling VA, for the first time in many years, to discharge about as many patients as it admits to its neuropsychiatric hospitals.

officer on Guam. For the past two years she has been helping to train student teachers from the high school senior class.

In part of her recent letter she said: "Probably everyone feels the same about his own college as I, but my conviction is that no prospective teacher could receive better training than at the Central Washington College of Education. For this reason I am anxious to see two of our best students attend next year."

LAWRENCE MOE TO BROADCAST ORGAN CONCERT OVER CBS

Lawrence H. Moe, associate professor of music at Central Washington College who is now studying at Harvard University, will be presented in a radio organ recital over the Columbia Broadcasting System August 1 and 8.

Mr. Moe will substitute for E. Power Biggs, considered one of the greatest of American organists. Mr. Biggs broadcasts weekly Sunday morning recitals from Harvard's Germanic Museum.

Time for the broadcasts by Mr. Moe is 9:15 a.m. E.D.T. and 6:15 a.m. P.D.T. over CBS. His program on August 1 will present the first radio performance of Roman Symphony by Widor.

His second program on August 8 will feature two sonatas by George Frederick McKay of the University of Washington music faculty. This program will also include Fuge and Choral by Honegger, and Prelude and Fuge in A Major by Walther.

Working On Ph.D.

Mr. Moe, associate of the American Guild of Organists, has been on a leave of absence from Central Washington College for the past year attending Harvard to work on his Ph.D. in musicology. During the year he has been studying with Mr. Biggs and was invited to play these two programs. Mr. Moe has also substituted for him several times at the organ in Harvard church, Brookline, Massachusetts.

Joining the Central Washington College faculty in 1940, Mr. Moe took his leave of absence to Harvard in the fall of 1947. He has a bachelor of music education, and master of music education degrees from Northwestern University. He was a student of Horace Whitehouse, Mus. D., professor of organ at Northwestern. Mr. Moe will return to C.W.C.E. at the beginning of fall term in September.

New Visual Director

Miss Virginia Goldsmith, director of audio-visual education at Highline High school, took over the supervision of the College audio-visual department at the beginning of the second half of summer school.

She replaced Donald L. Kruzner, director of audio-visual education for King county, who has returned to Seattle.

CWC Artist Gives Seattle Art Show

The one-man show of Gouache and water color paintings by Neil Koch, art instructor of Central Washington College on leave this summer, is being exhibited at Frederick and Nelson's in Seattle this month.

The paintings are being shown in the little gallery of northwest paintings. They will be on exhibit until August 1.

Mr. Koch, an experimental painter, has done a good deal of free lance painting. He has worked as a muralist on the east coast and in southern California was a professional designer for some time. He considers the landscape of the Pacific northwest one of his many sources of inspiration. Several of his paintings are in private collections.

This summer he is attending the University of Oregon art school. He plans to return to Ellensburg at the beginning of fall term.

Wildcats Win Over Huskies In Softball

With a twin win over the University of Washington at Seattle last week, the Wildcat softball squad will meet the Washington Huskies in a return doubleheader under the lights here at Rodeo Field at 7 p. m. on Friday, August 6.

In the first game in Seattle, the Wildcats defeated the Huskies 11-4. The game was played last Friday. Red Heritage, who throws the ball for the local Steak House team, pitched and Stan Sorensen, catcher for Strange's Sporting Goods, was the receiver.

The second game was a win for the Wildcats by 8-5. Dave Hartle was in the pitcher's box and Sorensen behind the platter. Hartle also pitches for the Steak House team. Central's squad is made up of many players from the City Softball League. A fifteen-man squad made the trip to Seattle and two almost entirely different teams were used in the two games.

Among the players on the Husky squad were many football and basketball stars from the Husky varsity outfits.

EXPECT SHORTAGE OF ROOMS FOR WOMEN

Even with the new dormitory under construction and Elwood House, the College will face a room shortage for women students when school begins in September according to Mrs. Annette Hitchcock, dean of women.

Reservations for rooms available were taken up more than a month ago and there is now a large group on the waiting list, she said. In order to take care of these students Mrs. Hitchcock is appealing to townspeople to list available off-campus rooms with her office.

Rooms for 66 women students have been provided this fall by construction of the new dormitory on Walnut street and the purchase of Elwood House. Montgomery Hall, one of the temporary dormitories, will be turned back to the men this fall. It accommodates 65 students. The new dorm will house 100 and Elwood House has room for 31.

PLANS UNDERWAY FOR ALPHA PHI OMEGA CHAPTER ON CAMPUS

Plans are underway for organizing a chapter of Alpha Phi Omega on the campus of C.W.C.E. this coming fall quarter. Alpha Phi Omega is a national service fraternity composed of college and university men who are or have been previously affiliated with the Boy Scouts of America.

Alpha Phi Omega is approved by the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America as the official college service organization for scouts and former scouts.

The purpose of the fraternity, as set forth in the national constitution, is "To assemble college men in the fellowship of the scout oath and law, to develop friendship and promote service to humanity."

Alpha Phi Omega renders service in four major fields: (1) service to the student body and faculty, (2) service to youth and community, (3) service to the nation as participating citizens, (4) service to members of the fraternity.

The first chapter was formed on December 16, 1925, at Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., by a group of former scouts who recognized the desirability of carrying over into their campus life the ideals and principles which were instilled into them as scouts in their boyhood days.

At present there are 145 chartered chapters of Alpha Phi Omega. In the state of Washington there are chapters at the University of Washington, State College of Washington, and Eastern Washington College of Education.

Workshop Draws Large Audience

Drawing record attendance to daily sessions from cities and communities of all parts of central Washington, the workshop of the Washington Congress of Parents and Teachers ended its successful five-day session last Friday.

Some 35 students were registered for the workshop and the daily audience, made up of visitors from the surrounding areas and Ellensburg, averaged between 200 and 300 people.

One of the highlights of the five-day session was the panel discussion featuring seven Ellensburg high and junior high school students. They gave their teachers and parents some weighty advice ranging from the international situation to juvenile delinquency.

National and state officers of the Congress of Parents and Teachers participated in the conference and conducted morning sessions on organization and functioning of P.T.A. Afternoon sessions were devoted to panel discussion problems. Miss Mary Simpson, associate professor of education, was director of the workshop.

as follows: (1) previous training in scouting, (2) desire to render service to others, (3) satisfactory scholastic standing. Scouts and former Scouts of all ranks are eligible for membership.

Fellows who would be interested in helping organize such a fraternity or who would like to join such an organization on our campus are urged to contact Gib Andress, Box 136, or Bill Cross, Box 108.

If enough interest is shown at the present time, a meeting will be held before the end of summer to lay plans for fall.

ROOM PLANNING IS SEPTEMBER FEATURE

Central Washington College of Education will sponsor a Classroom Planning conference featuring Dr. Darell B. Harmon, fellow of the Illuminating Engineering Society, on September 15 and 16, Dr. C. W. Saale, director of education announced this week.

The conference will be attended by architects, health officers, illuminating engineers and school administrators. They will consider the timely subjects of fenestration, color application, lighting and seating.

Dr. Harmon is known throughout the country for his original work in school lighting as related to child development. His principal work has been in the development of classroom standards for coordination of artificial light, day light, decoration and seating. He has determined some of the important quantitative relations between school lighting and child health and development.
