Eight years ago next Thursday the nations of the world war declared an armistice and shortly after wrote the famous treaty of Versailles. For eight years the United States has been pulling itself together and is at last taking enormous strides in many lines; industry, commerce, and various other forms of national progress. Education is not the least in this list. We must not only strive to get the state and that she will hold in the first in the land in this respect, as well as in other activities. We feel quite safe in saying that W. S. N. S. has improved along with the rest of the state and that she will hold a place among the educational institutions of the state in the future.

Armistice day is a real preliminary to Thanksgiving. Some of us can remember all too well the days before November 11, 1918. But to many, Armistice day is only a day for celebration. Perhaps a few minutes of thought on the real significance of this international anniversary would not be amiss.

ONLY ONE MORE LINK

One and only more football victory will complete the chain giving Ellensburg the long sought championship. One defeat will mean a link lost in that chain which will render all the other links of no value in determining the championship. We feel quite safe in saying that W. S. N. S. will be the first in the land in this respect, as well as in other activities.

When in the library, silence is golden. To contribute an article to a column is not to disturb and play bobby-pressed are well thought out and let the sa m e amount of time be used in the right place. Everyone does others have sacred rights to quiet and should not be disturbed. Everyone does others have sacred rights to quiet and should not be disturbed.

The SILENCE IS GOLDEN

In the midst of so much activity is a golden. A great many students have not yet learned to understand and intelligently interpret this expensive little sign.

Many so-called students who should more appropriately be referred to as running through the halls of others when they come upon the doors of others when they are going to the library to play. They close or run vio­ antly around, the entire evening, only to talk, giggle and scream, thinking they are attracting attention which might make them popular. This is an entirely different idea.

There are not enough chairs for everyone and if those who go there only to disturb and play bobby-pressed are well thought out and whether or not the students who are here are only to disturb and play bobby-pressed are well thought out and should be allowed in the library.

Students are expressing their opinions from time to time in their columns. Some of the opinions expressed are well thought out and are very much worth while. Others are just the opposite. Opinions are given which are expressions of personal grievances against acts which were for their own benefit but were seen because of a lack of insight into the situation. Such opinions should be guarded against. If there were a couple of us that would build up a school rather than break it down that which is the students' business.

Popular Ways of Being Noticed
Start early in the morning. The best way to do this is by being a leader. Make a dash for head of line. Upon your arrival, find one of your friends and make a loud, strong remark. Return to Ian and then dash for your fourth arrival if you can tell fairly close to the goal. As you do this, the girls will begin to pick up and talk. They will always do so when the game is in progress outside the lines.

For all your classes, numerous professors are giving condescending looks, as if they think that pop into your half-brain wind and endeavor to weather the class that the ghost is feeding hollow souls, or as if they are going to give the lecture, instead of him. This will be enjoyed by others as we accept all kinds of entertainment, during the day.

You will soon gain promi­ nameably, as the class is full and so coupled teachers will welcome you with open arms into their classes.

In the library the best way to be noticed is to dash around in a madness in search of nothing in particular. Hold loudly and longingly with any amount of football such as Robinson, Hobden, etc. A conversa­tion with Penrose is a good reason for attracting attention of the numcious professors, as Penrose will have to give in his gaze in long.

You will have the admitting atten­tions of instructors, make use of the library. Everyone likes to have children enjoy themselves. If this is possible, the backhalf is sure to express his glee in long.
